Bootilicious Baby Booties

Here is something to give Grandma a run for her money. Woolly Baby has a range of beautiful handmade boots & slippers for kids from 6 months to 6 years. The slippers are made from old sweaters so each one is unique. High ankles keeps baby's legs warm, gentle elastic makes sure the slippers do not fall off (I stopped counting how many baby socks I have lost) and soft soles are perfect for young feet. Their newest range, The Billy Goat, has reinforced toes and heels for those kids who love to run outside in their slippers. Little feet never had it so cosy.

OUT OF THIS WORLD

Suddenly, finding funky eco-friendly threads for your little Earthling isn't such an alien concept. Becoming aware of the devastating effects of cotton farming, the people growing it, and the small people wearing it led a New Zealand family to look for earth-friendly alternatives. Earthlings is the outcome: beautiful fair trade certified, organic cotton kids' clothing, without astronomical prices. Earthlings' gear screams of eco-style with simple creations in gorgeous hues; catering from little babes through to four years. There is plenty to choose from in their range: organic cotton underwear through to uber cute kimono bodysuits and non-toxic printed tees and hoodies. And your conscience can be at ease knowing that the family behind Earthlings are committed to trading fairly all the way along their supply chain as well as giving back to the community - each native bird print purchased sees a donation going to New Zealand Forest and Bird. Recession be damned, there's plenty of reasons to justify a spending spree...

Dig This!

One of the greatest challenges a green Mum faces is buying the present for another kid's birthday party. It is almost impossible to avoid the plastic, batteries and endless packaging. And, let's face it, some of the eco toys out there do not send kids jumping up and down with excitement.

Sprig Toys is changing all of that. Made from Sprigwood™ (recycled wood and reclaimed plastic), this range of vehicles and play sets would easily give Fisher Price a run for their money. The company was started by three toy designers who wanted to create an eco-friendly and ethical alternative, saying "We help make the world a better place and we get kids off the couch. Pretty cool, huh?" So cool! These toys actually run on kid-power to generate lights and sounds. Now if only we could bottle that...

What's not to love about these cool critters from Bholu? Handmade with wool felt and hand embroidery, the quirky designs are based on drawings from children who live in underprivileged slum communities in India. Fair trade and climate neutral, and seriously cute to boot.
